Previously called Iowa Stadium, Kinnick Stadium’s oval shape mimics the Roman Colosseum and features arches in sets of three for guests to enter the stadium. Fun fact: The visiting locker room is painted pink, which allegedly helps Iowa win their football games.

Carver Hawkeye Arena features an external truss roof, which reduces the amount of space inside the building that must be heated.

Built in 1974, Duane Banks Field has undergone multiple renovations that added a videoboard and press box to the stadium. Former Hawkeye and Major League Baseball player Cal Eldred funded the stadium lights, which allows the Iowa baseball team to play at night.

This building’s architecture was inspired by its close neighbor, Kinnick Stadium. It incorporates red brick and has a similar design on the south window. A Tigerhawk logo can be seen etched into the glass above the IOWA FOOTBALL lettering.
